FAB 5

IN THE RAW

Hawaii's poke fish trend has hit Dallas in a big way. Here are our favorite new spots to indulge. —Lauren Sands

1 AHI POKE BOWL
This Arlington poke place has been on the forefront of the poke trend in the Dallas area. Owner Khang Vo, who spent his early life in Hawaii, knows how to serve quality fresh fish. 3701 Cooper St., 817.200.6418, ahipokebowl.com

FRESHFIN POKE CO.
This brand-new Greenville Avenue hot spot is a vibrant, quick-paced environment and the healthy alternative to fast food that Dallas needed. It's also 100 percent gluten free. 3611 Greenville Ave., 214.730.0576, freshfinpokeco.com

3 GO FISH POKE BAR
This highly anticipated poke restaurant has recently opened in Preston Center and follows a model similar to Chipotle, where customers are able to custom build their own bowl, choosing a base of rice or salad. 6030 Luther Lane

POKE BOP
Launched in January, this poke bar is looking to open in three to four more Dallas locations in 2017. In addition to poke bowls, they serve a sushi burrito, known as a "Poke Ritto." 4103 Lemmon Ave., 214.521.7653, ilovepokebop.com

THE LUXE LIFE

THE BEAUTY SHOP

By Kristie Ramirez

Enlighten MD has just added what until now has been the best-kept secret in Preston Hollow: Enlighten Living, a new lifestyle boutique. Owner Kari Feinstein's pretty and very busy clients can now come in for everything from microblading, laser treatments and injectables to home decor and clothing. "I am them," says Feinstein, a working mother of three, of her quintessential demographic. The shop carries lacy bralettes by Eberjey and Les Coquines; chic agate bookends and coasters; bedding; jewelry; baby gifts and athleisure wear. There is also a new event space for social groups to have beauty parties and host charitable fundraisers. And Kari, a known matchmaker among her friends, also keeps a running list of all her single and divorced clients. "We have fun setting up our people," she says. New clothes, perfect skin and a Saturday night date? Yes, please. 5232 Forest Lane, 214.964.0860, enlightenmd.com
